

Winners announced for School Warriors 2.0 contest

Under its clean air initiative 'Hawa Badlo', GAIL (India) Limited in association with The Times of India recently concluded the second edition of School Warriors contest. The contest was aimed towards creating awareness about air pollution amongst students and the school community, including parents and teachers. The contest was open for kids from class VII to XII, ideas were invited digitally to showcase their creative views on air pollution by uploading short videos, art forms, essays with ideas and their corrective suggestions against air pollution. The event culminated with a panel discussion on the 'Change the Air - A fight Against Air Pollution' and an awards ceremony in the presence of subject matter experts, school leaders and principals and school kids. The contest got overwhelming response from school kids from across India. Santanu Roy, Executive Director (BD, SD & CA) from GAIL felicitated the winners.
